Filipino Americans are projected to become the largest Asian American population by 2010 as the second largest immigrant group in the country there are approximately 3 million documented and undocumented Filipino Americans in the US. Filipino Americans are unique in many ways; they are descendants of the Philippines, a country that was colonized by Spain for over three centuries and by the US for almost 50 years. They are the only ethnic group that has been categorized as Asian American, Pacific Islander, Hispanic, and even as their own separate ethnicity because of diverse phenotypes they are often perceived as being Asian, Latino, multiracial, and others. And contrary to the model minority myth, Filipino Americans have experienced several health, psychological, and educational disparities including lower college graduation rates and higher levels of cardiovascular disease, diabetes, obesity, teen pregnancy, HIV/AIDS, substance abuse, depression, and suicide. Despite these dispiriting statistics, Filipino Americans have made significant contributions to the US ever since their first arrivals in October 1587 from their involvement in the United Farmworkers Movement to their roles in hip hop culture and their presence in medicine, education, and the arts. However, Filipino Americans have also been referred to as the forgotten Asian Americans because of their invisibility in mainstream media, academia, and politics. Filipino American Psychology: A Collection of Personal Narratives offers an intimate look at the lives of Filipino Americans through stories involving ethnic identity, colonial mentality, cultural conflicts, and experiences with gender, sexual orientation, and multiraciality. Writers courageously address how they cope with mental health issues including depression anxiety post traumatic stress and suicide theories and concepts from the book's predecessor Filipino American Psychology: A Handbook of Theory Research and Clinical Practice can be applied through the voices of a diverse collection of filipino americans in Counter Hispanization in the Colonial Philippines the author analyzes the literature and politics of spiritual conquest in order to demonstrate how it reflected the contribution of religious ministers to a protracted period of social anomie throughout the mission provinces between the 16th 18th centuries by tracking the prose of spiritual conquest with the history of the mission in official documents religious correspondence and public controversies the author shows how contrary to the general consensus in philippine historiography the literature and pastoral politics of spiritual conquest reinforced the frontier character of the religious provinces outside manila in the americas as well as the philippines by supplanting the absence of law in the name of supplementing or completing it this frontier character accounts for the modern reinvention of native custom as well as the birth of literature and theater in the tagalog vernacular
