this paperback reprinting of gustaf aulen s great textbook of systematic theology should be a welcome delight to the christian theologian the reputation if this second english edition based on the fifth and most extensively revised swedish edition has steadily increased over the years as a clear and sound guide to the substance of the christian faith besides treating the whole compass of traditional themes associated with the doctrines of god christ and the church aulen in this edition has provided new chapters on the communion of saints and on the relation between scripture and tradition the chapters on the biblical validation of the content of faith the doctrine of the lord s supper and the unity of the church and the disunity of the churches were rewritten the statements on the relation between the two testaments creation and redemption natural law the resurrection the validity of infant baptism and eschatology were substantially revised aulen s keen analysis and clear presentation of the fundamental motifs of the christian faith

his sharp demarcation of these motifs from their aberrations in the history of christian thought and in contemporary theology and especially his profound sense of the oneness of the church s faith have endeared this book to students theologians clergymen and hosts of intelligent and inquiring laity of every denomination this book offers a new reading of aquinas s views on faith the author argues that the theological nature of faith is crucial to aquinas s thought and that it gives rise to a particular and otherwise incomprehensible relationship with reason the first part of the book examines various modern and contemporary accounts of the relationship between faith and reason in aquinas s thought the author shows that these accounts are unconvincing because they exhibit what he calls a lockean view of faith and reason which maintains that the relationship between faith and reason should be treated only by way of evidence in other words the lockean view ignores the specific nature of the christian faith and the equally specific way it needs to relate to reason the second part offers a comprehensive account of aquinas s view of faith it focuses on the way the divine grace and charity shape the relationship between evidence and human will the final part of the book ties these ideas together to show how christian faith with its specifically theological nature is perfectly compatible with rational debate it also argues that employing the specificity of faith may constitute the best way to promote autonomous and successful rational investigations aquinas on faith reason and charity will be of interest to scholars and advanced students working on aquinas philosophy of religion christian theology and medieval philosophy scientists historians philosophers and theologians often engage in debates on the limitations and mutual interactions of their respective fields of study serious discussions are often overshadowed by the mass produced popular and semi popular literature on science and religion as well as by the political agendas of many of the actors in these debates for some reducing religion and science to forms of social discourse is a possible way out from epistemological overlapping between them yet is there room for religious faith only when science dissolves into one form of social discourse the religion thus rescued would have neither rational legitimisation nor metaphysical validity but if both scientific and religious theories try to make absolute claims on all possible aspects of reality then conflict between them seems almost inevitable in this book leading authors in the field of science and religion including william carroll steve fuller karl giberson and roger trigg highlight the oft neglected and profound philosophical foundations that underlie some of the most frequent questions at the boundary between science and religion the reality of knowledge and the notions of creation life and design in tune with mariano artigas s work the authors emphasise that these are neither religious nor scientific but serious philosophical questions larry l rasmussen offers a dramatic new way of thinking about human society ethics and the health of our planet rejecting the modern ethical assumption that morality applies to human society alone earth honoring faith argues that we must derive a system of ethics and morality that accounts for the wellbeing of all creation on earth the tablīghī jamā'at is a twentieth century faith renewal movement which is presently operating in more than eighty countries with millions of participants its annual conference has become the second largest muslim congregation after the hajj in the absence of official writings and its abstinence from media publicity the jamā'at can best be studied by participant observation as illustrated by the studies of its activities in india britain france germany belgium canada morocco and south africa which are presented in this volume studying the historical and social growth of this movement in india its transnational transformation the development of its ideology particularly on the questions of conversion gender religious diversity organization communication adjustment with the local environment and personal transformation this volume offers fascinating information about contemporary da'wa phenomenon in islam
